

q socials: with MARY LOUISE III

Hello to all of you beautiful humans!

Well, it's time to put a little more Q in you. Brett and I have been working hard by making plans, communicating and working on a strong business model for what Q will be later this year, we are working on more things in Q for you, more of what you would like and more of where we are heading.

With that being said, I have seen a steady increase in our social media pages, with a relaunch due in August this year, we here at Team Q would like to see more followers and interactions with our social media pages, we would love you, our family, our everything to spread the word and ask everyone you know to follow us on Facebook, TikTok and instagram, if you haven't followed the three amigos yet, the information is below.

Brett and I have been doing a lot of travel in the last month and it has been wonderful exploring this great nation of ours, whilst we are a Melbourne based magazine, we do welcome support from all over the world and also enjoy many different aspects of our wonderful community and offer support to our community far and wide.

Very soon we will be doing a restructure of our sales, and being web based and now more active on social media, we will be offering different ways in which you would like to let our readers and followers know all about your business, show or event.

Q Magazine now offers business and event advertising packages on our social media: TikTok; Instagram; Facebook; Reddit; and our social media manager's pages.

There are multiple, constantly evolving package options catering to the specific needs of every organisation, business and government department. An integral part of this new campaign will be to highlight articles and topics in each issue of Q Magazine.

Advertisers are able to take advantage of this innovative and cost-effective option with name mentions topping and tailing each post - designed specifically for TikTok.

4 second social media display videos are also available for those advertisers who have purchased advertisements in the main publication.

In addition to Q Magazine representatives attending events such as concerts, plays, festivals, the theatre and the like, 1 minute social media visuals will be produced - sponsored by either individual event organisers or producers or advertisers with a specific interest in these industries.

As an incentive, those who promote Q Magazine in their social media pages, Q Magazine will offer a 10% discount on any and all Q Social Media advertising.

We look forward to welcoming you as an advertiser and supporter of Q Magazine: supporting our community since 2004. Please like/follow/add/subscribe to the following Q Social Media pages.
